

Jeffrey Scott Freebairn

May 23, 1971 - October 15, 2020

Jeffrey Scott Freebairn, 49, passed away unexpectedly on October 15, 2020 in Utah of a pulmonary embolism. Jeff was born in Salt Lake City, Utah on May 23, 1971 to Mary P and Robert D Freebairn. Jeff is survived by his two beloved children, Pierce and Mireille Freebairn, brother Robert (Shauna) Freebairn and sister Meredith (Mike) Mackris. Preceded in death by both his parents. He will be missed.

Jeff was always an intellectually curious person, from childhood until his death. A voracious reader, avid photographer. He enjoyed documenting daily observations, successes and admitting to challenges he faced. To all those who supported him in the past, thank you for all the love, he appreciated it. He fought many battles in his short life, health issues ended up side-lining him.

Jeff lived in San Francisco for 28 years, with time spent working for EuroDisney in France, where he forged lifelong friendships. Jeff graduated from San Francisco State University in 1998 with a creative writing degree. He loved to write and would share his stories with those who were close to him. He built a career around Sales and Strategic Partnerships in the mobile app arena, building a network of friends and co-workers from around the world. Whenever his family had questions about technology, we'd go to him. He had a wealth of information for any situation, and we will greatly miss him.

He will be interred in the Murray City Cemetery beside his parents.

Arrangements are under the direction of Wiscombe Memorial.

“ Oh my goodness.. I'm so sorry to learn this.. I wish had known..

Jeff & I were friends for a long time. We met back in 1993.. we worked together at the City Club. And we were friends ever since. Jeff even worked at my company for a little while.

And, we still often were in touch. In fact, Jeff & I had emailed each other just a few weeks before this happened.

I hadn't heard from him for a while, and then I found this.

Just tragic. I'm really sad to learn this.

Jeff, you were a great friend. I will miss you. Rest in peace.

Rock and roll.

“ Met Jeff in San Francisco when we were both 20 working same job and saw each other grow, get married and have children. Stayed in touch on and off and always known him to be a man of class, intelligent, hardworking and articulate. He will be missed. RIP and may the lord have his mercy on you!

“ One of the first friends we made in San Francisco. We have many happy memories of the Freebairn's when all of our kids were small. So sad to hear this.

“ A true friend. I'm heart-broken. Gone far too soon. Jeff, your written word, unique insight and wisdom, your depth, genuine care, sarcasm, music, and current views will forever be with me. All my love to his beautiful children and siblings. Rest In Peace, Youngblood.

“ My name is Hannah Janowski, and you most likely don't know me. Jeff was my coworker, and Jeff was one of the only people to ask me how I am every week and was there when I was so dang nervous about this sales job. Well, I don't really have family, so when I communicate with people that are sincerely good. I tend to care a little more than I probably should. I got the email today, that he passed. I was devastated and I took a double take, explained why I hadn't heard from him. I've been actually sick so I haven't been active at work for a little while, but I wished I told him how thankful I was for his jokes. Him calling me out on my shaky confidence in sales but i have over the top confidence in dog training. And for asking how my 5 dogs are and wondering when I was taking the trip to get my german shepherd. He did more than most would, especially for someone at a work place that have never met. He just was so involved, and that was inspiring. Ive even thought about taking the trip to Utah from Arizona to pay my respect however couldn't find enough info to do so. So this will have to do, I am so so so sorry about your loss. He seemed like an incredible person that brought a lot of light to the most darkest situations. If you need anything at all, don't hesitate to reach out.

Hello Hannah - it's stories like yours that remind us that what we do and say matters, but sometimes we don't realize they matter. It makes me so happy to hear your story and to know that Jeff made a difference to you, because he made a difference to us. I'm Jeff's sister and I loved reading your note. Thank you so very much!
